between

Anhalt University of Applied Science in Germany and Osh Technological University in Kyrgyzstan

The universities of Anhalt University of Applied Science
Osh Technological University,

Article 1.

The fields of cooperation.

The following cooperation involves any activities and programs by mutual agreement, which is accepted and considered appropriate by both parties, for strengthening and developing the scientific-methodological and scientific researches.

Article 2.

The types of cooperation.

1. The special cooperation between two Universities (except of these) may cover following areas:

- a) Exchanging the scientists and researchers;
- b) Joint scientific research projects;
- c) Researcher, monitoring of doctoral students;
- d) Participation in seminars and scientific meetings;
- e) Activities of doctoral students, possible exchange of doctoral students (the parties may mutually agree);
- f) Student participation in study abroad programs hosted by each university.

Article 3.

Exchange of university professors and researchers

1. Both universities are committed to facilitating the visits of each other's professors and researchers. Visiting professors and researchers follow administrative procedures as required by the host university.

2. Both universities may, but are not obligated to, provide financial support for visiting professors or researchers from another institution.

3. Both universities provide accommodation for visiting professors and researchers from the other university, but are not required to provide such accommodation.

4. Both universities allow visiting professors and researchers from the other university, use of research space, libraries and other facilities, free lecture opportunities, and other general favours given to visiting scholars in general.

Article 4.

Student exchange

Both universities can exchange doctoral and undergraduate students.

1. Each university is responsible for the selection of exchange students. Exchange students from both universities pay tuition fees to their home institution and then do not pay tuition fees when they transfer to another institution. However, small fees may be charged on this basis to local students for expenses such as insurance, student unions and bodies, and the use of various materials such as laboratory supplies.

3. Each university will assist in arranging local accommodation for visiting students; however, these local accommodation costs are covered by visiting students. Each participating student or his/her university is responsible for the costs of travel arrangements. Additional fees such as passports, visas, telephone services, books and any other personal taxes are covered by the student.

4. Each university may assist its students by providing certain scholarships and each university requires students to provide their own medical/health insurance while participating in student exchange and all students must provide the host with this insurance. They must provide proof of their identity.

Article 5.
